

Value Co-Creation and Social Innovation for a New Generation of European Libraries

LibrarIN provides new avenues for participatory management for European libraries and examines how libraries can develop new functions, services and engagement strategies with the individuals, organisations and communities they serve. The goal is to develop managerial and policy recommendations, based on empirical evidence, that can increase the public & private value of library services.

LibrarIN Toolkit

LibrarIN aspires to give libraries the tools to "reposition" themselves at the core of cultural and socioeconomic activity in the neighborhoods, cities and regions where they operate.

A comprehensive toolkit has been designed to support library staff and policymakers in advancing social innovation within European libraries by offering resources at the policy, library, and academic levels.

Library policy tracker

Measures the extent to which national policies align with EU-level recommendations regarding LibrarIN research areas.

What-works database

Collects experiences, case studies, and good practices that promote value co-creation and social innovation in libraries.

Research knowledge base

A repository of papers, studies, and reports on value co-creation and social innovation in the library sector.
